

Early Stage Faculty Boot Camp

October 11 - 13, 2023 | 8:30 a.m. - 5:00 p.m.
In Person - LeChase Assembly Room G.9576

Program Goals

Upon completion of the ESFBC program, participants will have enhanced their abilities to:

- Identify the necessary resources for career development including university resources and opportunities for networking.
- Identify sources for research funding support, including career development grants.
- Use reflective practice and self-management strategies to develop and enhance their career development plan.
- Apply knowledge and skills to one's own career path through focused discussions.

Program Components

ESFBC is a multi-faceted program that includes:

- In person presentations and discussions (October 11-13, 8:30am -5:00pm)
- Independent learning and reflective practice
- Engagement in a professional learning community of early stage faculty from a wide variety of departments, with different career trajectories and backgrounds.

ESFBC Participants

This program is designed to provide a professional development opportunity for URSMD faculty at the Senior Instructor or Assistant Professor level. It is cohort-based and size is limited.

Program Directors

Ronnie Guillet, MD, PhD, Professor of Pediatrics (Neonatology)

Janine R. Shapiro, MD, Associate Dean for Faculty Development, Medical Director for Continuing Medical Education, Professor of Anesthesiology and Perioperative Medicine

Faculty

The ESFBC program includes many URM C faculty and facilitators.

Program Dates

- October 11-13, 8:30am -5:00pm

Fees

This program is made possible through educational funds from the CTSI and the Dean's office. There is no charge to faculty for attending this program.

Certificate

A certificate of completion will be issued to all participants completing the program, as determined by attendance at least at 80% of the seminars. CME credits will also be provided.