

Psychiatry's Partners Teach Students About Community Engagement in Health

Two new opportunities to pass on the important academic tradition of community engagement were organized this fall. Community partners helped kick off a new undergraduate course in public health. This internship opportunity places students in their community agencies to advance public health practices. UR's Student Bridge for Community Engagement Committee, that Psychiatry participates in, also organized a workshop for all UR student trainees on September 20th.

Successful Women's Health Fair

The Women's Screening Health Fair at the Market on September 7th was again a great success! Psychiatry was among many URMC departments represented. We staffed a table to provide mental health screening and also gave out information on common mental disorders and resources available. Many thanks go to the following co-workers who volunteered to screen 32 public market goers around their mental health concerns:
